ANNUAL REPORT

Toronto Birth Centre

Mandate: To achieve optimal health and wellness for the whole community through culturally centred care, education and research that supports the practice of Aboriginal midwifery in its fullest scope, both culturally and professionally.

The Vision of the Toronto Birth Centre is: To create a space where families and communities can access culturally safe birthing care.

Our Core Values are:

Self Determination – All persons involved with the birth centre are recognized as doing so of their own free will. We acknowledge and remember we are all responsible to ourselves, to our families and to our community.

Equity – The birth centre is committed to establishing policy, procedure and guidelines that promote equity among all people.

Dignity – We aim to conduct all our relationships and interactions with the utmost dignity. This includes acting in a manner that builds trust, creating an environment free of judgment, being honest and direct in all our dealings, acknowledging power differentials, and being open to discussion.

Justice – We work to create an environment and practice that resists false narratives of history, society and health while actively addressing health disparities both in voice and in action.

Indigenous Framework

The Toronto Birth Centre is founded within an INDIGENOUS FRAMEWORK, which informs all aspects of the program. These include nurturing healthy and reciprocal partnerships, integrating opportunities for leadership and capacity building into general operations, establishing clear roles and responsibilities for all peoples involved, and building this on a foundation of strong policies and protocols.

The integration of realistic ITAPISINOWIN, or Indigenous worldviews, into midwifery and reproductive care services ensures they are grounded in the diverse socio-cultural contexts and beliefs, values, skills, and knowledge of First Nations, Indian, Indigenous, Inuit, and Métis individuals and communities. The birth centre and the coalition supporting it are committed to ensuring the cultural integrity of this centre by supporting a majority Indigenous representation and administration within the governing structure.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT AND EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

I am very grateful to have the opportunity to serve as the President of the board of the Toronto Birth Centre in the second full year of operations. On behalf of the board I want to recognize the dynamic efforts of the staff, midwives, clients and community that have shaped a truly unique Indigenous and Midwife-led space for reproductive health, pregnancy and birth.

A special thanks must go to Roberta Pike and Sara Booth, the executive director and clinical director, respectively, who have guided the TBC through an incredible year of growth. Roberta, Sara and the dedicated admin and outreach team and birth centre aides work tirelessly to support a culturally secure and accessible space for midwives, clients and community.

One of the most inspiring things for me in my time developing, building and governing the TBC has been the steadfast engagement of Midwives. I will never forget in the days leading up to opening the TBC, midwives from around the city would come into the space asking to help and enthusiastically mop the floors or stay well past 2 am to help organize instruction manuals! It is a testament to the midwives in Toronto that the TBC clinical practice parameters were initially developed with the participation of over 75 midwives. This incredible commitment to the TBC continues to be demonstrated with over 40 committee volunteers, 167 committee volunteer hours, and 205 volunteer board hours in this year alone.

A particular point of pride for TBC this year has been the diversification of opportunities for client and community participation. This year the TBC has marked the changing of the seasons with traditional feasts, and has ensured traditional Indigenous medicines such as Tobacco, Sweetgrass, Cedar and Sage have been available to midwives and clients in a good way.

Cheryllee Bourgeois, RM

In our second full year of operations, the Toronto Birth Centre (TBC) has done some incredible work. Indigenous cultures, practices and ceremony is being reclaimed and embraced by the community. We look forward to facilitating more opportunities for the TBC community to access learning about Indigenous cultural safety and participating in events and ceremony.

TBC has met its service plan targets for this fiscal year and has been successful in achieving clinical outcomes that are comparable to that of home births across the province. At the opening of TBC, the Board had also set a target of TBC reaching 50% of its clients from priority populations. Setting this target has highlighted how important it is for dedicated resources to support the activities that contribute to reaching the goal. TBC staff will continue to work hard to reach further into the communities being served by the TBC and develop relationships and partnerships which will support us in achieving or exceeding this target.

TBC is a wonderful environment in which to learn about normal birth and Indigenous cultural safety. TBC as focused centre of education is proud to report that in addition to the Midwifery Education Program placements supported by TBC and affiliated Midwifery Practice Groups, TBC was also able to support a community-based health care admin student and a high school student thinking about exploring a career in obstetrics and gynecology. What an incredible opportunity to shape thinking about normal birth, the health care experiences and needs of priority populations in Ontario, and how health care facilities/professionals can make an impact in the experiences of clients. We look forward to another amazing year.

Roberta Pike, MSW
